

GLOBAL HARVEST FOODS PURCHASES AUDUBON PARK CO.

Jan. 3, 2006

Seattle, WA-Global Harvest Foods, a leading producer of wild bird food products, announced today the purchase of the Audubon Park Company.

Audubon Park, located in Akron, CO, has been a leading supplier of quality wild bird food products for over 30 years. Audubon Park has been a major supplier to the drug, grocery, hardware, home improvement, mass-merchandise, military, and pet trades. Audubon Park supplies these customers with a variety of Audubon Park labels as well as being a major supplier of private label wild bird food products.

As part of Global Harvest's drive to build a national distribution system, it has long coveted a Colorado plant location to capitalize on excellent grain availability and efficient outbound freight to the West Coast and Southwest. Audubon Park is a terrific solution to this need with a powerful brand name, penetration to new retail channels, great connections with grain growers and major rail accessibility.

The combined assets of both companies will provide a most complete program of category management of wild bird food products for their customers. The first primary objective will be to make this transition as seamless as possible. The Global Harvest team looks forward to working with the Audubon group and its customers.

About Global Harvest

Global Harvest Foods was founded in 1980 by the Mills family. The company is privately held with production plants in Mead, WA, Harrold, SD and Souderton, PA. Global Harvest is a major producer of wild bird food, small animal, wildflower, grass seeds and other lawn and garden products.